

Aizhou Wang

Aizhou Wang is a staff scientist in the Toronto Lung Transplant Program in the Ajmera Transplant Center at University Health Network (Toronto, Canada). She received her PhD studying hemoglobin based blood substitutes at the University of Toronto, followed by postdoctoral training with Dr. Marcelo Cypel at University Health Network, looking at the feasibility of donor organ modification using ex vivo organ perfusion techniques. Her research interest is in ABO incompatible transplantation and translational ex vivo organ therapies.